Dear FCC,

In accordance to the recent actions proposed by Chairman Pai, to negate the long-standing Net Neutrality laws, I wish to formally submit my complaint. Net Neutrality has protected content creators and customers alike, allowing a free internet and letting the users and creators of the internet have their rightful domain and access to their property and business. The acts that Chairman Pai proposed are both twisted and cruel to the customers and marketplaces on the internet. The net is a community, and an economy. The actions he is wanting to take will disrupt and foul the internet as we know it. It will restrict freedom and punish those who ISPs deem so. The internet service providers will be able to strangle the internet and shake all the loose change out of poor customer's pockets. This would bring tyranny into the community. These actions are undesired and the problems it will cause are innumerable. The only way this problem will be solved is either that Chairman Pai resigns or calls off his war against the internet community. Please consider the horrendous implications of Chairman Pai's ulterior motives. His time in office has been drastically affected by his previous affiliations with Verizon. He will, and has already, used his power to benefit his previous company. It would be best to consider that Chairman Pai at this point in time is too flawed to be in office. It will only result in him pursuing his own betterment, with his position as leverage for his terrible motives.
